MESSENGER

SPRING 2024

MARYVALE

LEARN. LEAD. SUCCEED.

DEAR MEMBERS OF THE MARYVALE COMMUNITY,

Upon my graduation some 46 years ago, I had no way of knowing the impact my Maryvale experience would have on my life. Indeed, it is difficult for me to talk about Maryvale without getting emotional.

I love this school to my core, and I love sharing it with other people. That is why I am so excited the Maryvale Messenger is back! This magazine is a wonderful way for us to share the Maryvale story with our community.

In bringing back the Messenger, we start with the introduction of our new President, Malika DeLancey. In these last months of working with Malika, I have seen firsthand how joy and passion infuse her work every day. She joined Maryvale with tremendous experience in Baltimore independent schools. In this issue, we share more about Malika personally, her education experience and philosophy, and her vision for Maryvale. We are blessed to have her lead us into the future, along with several new members of our Board of Trustees who graciously give their time to assist in ensuring the vitality of our school.

As you read through this magazine, you will learn about the newly named Patricia J. Mitchell '65 Leadership Institute (soon to celebrate 10 years), the learning support programs helping students develop lifelong skills for success (St. Julie Billiard and Ford Programs), and the expanding curriculum to support our students as they think ahead to college and begin to explore career opportunities. In our News & Notes section, you will have a chance to catch up with alumnae from all over the country and, in our highlights section, you will meet some alumnae who came back to campus to share their journey with current students. We are so pleased to showcase Maryvale students, past and current, as they learn, lead, and succeed—in the classroom, on the field, on stage, and throughout their lives as alumnae of our beloved institution.

And finally, the last half of the Messenger is dedicated to thanking those who offer their extraordinary support to Maryvale. I am deeply grateful and humbled by your generosity. Many thanks to each one of you for your part in the Maryvale story. Your generous giving, year after year, allows us to continue our Maryvale mission to educate young women for life.

I truly hope you enjoy the Maryvale Messenger and the stories inside.

Gratefully,

PATRICIA M.C. BROWN, ESQ. '78

Meet Ms. DeLancey

MALIKA DELANCEY broke ground when she became Maryvale Preparatory School's President on July 1, 2023. She's the first person of color to be Maryvale President and one of the first Black women to lead an independent school in the Baltimore region.

It's an auspicious, pioneering moment for Maryvale and Ms. DeLancey. It's also the culmination of humble, intentional steps on a path that began decades ago in the crowded aisles of Catonsville's long-gone teacher supply store.

Every late August, Ms. DeLancey accompanied her mother and two grandmothers who were Baltimore City Public School teachers on their annual pilgrimage to shop for classroom supplies. As young as age four, Ms. DeLancey picked out bulletin board decorations, scratch-and-sniff stickers, and rainbow-colored markers.

"I can't remember a time when I wasn't heavily involved in school life from the perspective of a student or the daughter of a teacher," recalls Ms. DeLancey. "My mother and grandmothers would talk about their students and plan lessons together. I thought it was the coolest thing in the world that they had such a fun job. They got to work with kids."

About Ms. DeLancey

- B.A., Psychology, University of Maryland, College Park
- M.S., Education, Johns Hopkins University

The moment she embraced her calling was crystal clear. Ms. DeLancey, then in second grade, and her younger sister, Kalinda, had the day off from their Baltimore County public school. They accompanied their mother to her second grade classroom and spent the day watching their mother manage and inspire, in equal measure, nearly 40 students.

"It was extraordinary. People were happy and learning, and my mom was in complete control," Ms. DeLancey recalls. "I understood then that she could make someone's day by her presence and her planning. She could shape a person's life. It felt like a worthwhile way for me to spend my life."

Ever since, Ms. DeLancey believes her professional and personal paths have led her to her "dream job" as President of Maryvale. (Spoiler alert: Early September's back-to-school season is her favorite time of year.) Her first job opened her eyes to what the future could hold. "I knew I wanted to be a head of school when I was at Garrison Forest," she says. "Peter O'Neill [Head of School, now retired] and the leadership team saw my potential and encouraged me."

Each experience helped her build a deeper understanding and empathy for school communities. Ms. DeLancey was the Class President at Yokota High School in Japan where her family lived while her stepfather was stationed at the U.S. Air Force base in Fussa City, Japan. She was the Vice-President of the Black Awareness Club at Seton Keough High School and served as a Resident Assistant at University of Maryland, College Park. She has held subsequent roles at regional schools and serves on different boards for education-focused nonprofits [see sidebar].

Shanaysha M. Sauls, Ph.D., President and CEO of Baltimore Community Foundation, met Ms. DeLancey 25 years ago when they joined Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority at University of Maryland. They bonded as sorority sisters and as leaders. "I was the president of the chapter, and she was in charge of bringing the new cohort of members, teaching them our traditions and being their mother figure," Dr. Sauls says. "Malika is kind, compassionate and determined. Her smile lights up her face and a room. What you see is what you get, and you'll love her for it."

For Dr. Sauls, Ms. DeLancey has always been a role model. "Malika stayed above the fray and was incredibly mature, especially compared to the rest of us," she adds. "She was literally our older sister, quietly making sure we didn't fall over the edge. And there were plenty of them! Even then, she had a presence that made you want to do and be a better person, simply because she was around."

While family, colleagues, and mentors nurtured her career, Ms. DeLancey's decision to be an educational leader falls squarely in the "nature" column: "I was always

"She delights in students' potential, laughter and wants to invest in their aspirations. I've visited with Malika at Maryvale, and it's not hard to tell that she's found her home. That's what you want in a leader—someone who loves the people and the place."

—Shanaysha Sauls, Ph.D., President and CEO,
Baltimore Community Foundation

drawn to wanting to lead folks because I really like people. I think that's an important part of being a leader."

It comes down to her core values and what she learned from growing up in a house where joy and potential were palpable. "I believe in people," Ms. DeLancey adds. "I believe that people can grow, that it's okay to make mistakes. I enjoy supporting adults the same way I enjoy supporting young people. Being President of Maryvale is an ideal marriage of these two things."

Tim Fish, Chief Innovation Officer for the National Association of Independent Schools, worked with Ms. DeLancey at McDonogh School in his former role as associate head of school. "The four words I use to describe her are 'commitment, care, vision, and creativity,' which are super necessary for a head of school," says Mr. Fish, who works with heads of school from more than 2,000 schools nationwide. "Malika is truly one of the great leaders in our country because she brings these four talents and many others to her work," Mr. Fish adds.

At McDonogh, he witnessed her deep commitment to helping prospective students and families and the admissions staff navigate the admissions process when she was associate director of admissions for the Lower School. In 2014, Ms. DeLancey became McDonogh's Director of Diversity. Mr. Fish says, "She was able to help us see the journey we need to be on around diversity, equity, inclusion, and belonging. Her approach wasn't like 'we have to be all the way there right now.'"

Ms. DeLancey established McDonogh's all-school diversity leadership team and co-led the creation of the school's diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) strategic

"Malika cares deeply about people, and she's a strong advocate for people, adults and students. She does everything she can to ensure that [students] are cared for and creates the right foundational environment for them to learn and grow."

—Tim Fish, Chief Innovation Officer, National Association of Independent Schools

What's on Ms. DeLancey's Playlist?

Music is a big part of Ms. DeLancey's life. Here, she shares her favorite tracks and why.

🎵 "In a Sentimental Mood," Duke Ellington and John Coltrane
I first heard this piece of music on TV as a child. I think it was the first piece of music without words that I latched onto.

🎵 "If I Had a Hammer," Peter, Paul, and Mary
When I listen to this song, I feel like I can change the world, as long as I have Peter, Paul, and Mary with me.

🎵 "Love On Top," Beyonce
My niece, Maya, sang this song to me when she was three. It's been my favorite Beyonce song ever since.

🎵 "Joy," Whitney Houston and the Georgia Mass Choir
Joy is one of my core values. And every Christmas is magical.

🎵 "Love of My Life," Erykah Badu
An ode to hip hop, one of my favorite genres.

🎵 "No Rain," Blind Melon
Watch this video. I promise you'll get it.

🎵 "You are the Sunshine of my Life," Stevie Wonder
For my sweet children, Gavin and Reese.

🎵 "Passin' Me By," The Pharcyde
One of the first alternative rap songs that crossed my path – and one of Lin Manuel-Miranda's favorite rap songs.

🎵 "Oh Happy Day," The St. Francis Choir featuring Ryan Toby
If you need a pick-me-up, turn the volume up on this one.

🎵 "The Biggest Part of Me," Ambrosia
This is our wedding song. Shout-out to my best friend, Jason DeLancey!

"Ms. DeLancey evokes joy and has a passion for helping young people live by the Maryvale Way — respect, dignity, and inclusivity. With her foundation of Catholic values and undeniable connection with the students, Malika will build on Maryvale's strong tradition of high caliber academics, leadership development, and deep commitment to individualized education."

—Patricia M.C. Brown '78, Chair,
Maryvale Board of Trustees

plan. "She's incredible at this work," Mr. Fish says. "[Ms. DeLancey] brought joy to my own personal [DEI] journey, and I know she did the same for many other people."

He's excited about the merging of Ms. DeLancey's experience, talents, and joy-filled approach to the world with Maryvale's accomplishments and strategic vision. "[Being a head of school] is a balance of commitment and care, of vision and creativity," Mr. Fish explains. "She has a remarkable ability of knowing where she wants to go and then understanding how to help a community get there. She has a lot of empathy and persistence ... She's always smiling, always positive, even when things are tough."

Choosing to lead a faith community was always part of her intended path. In fact, the word "path" features prominently in her guiding scripture, Proverbs 3:5,6: "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all things acknowledge Him and He will make your path straight."

Ms. DeLancey admits that she has a penchant for seeking definitive answers. "I can get stuck trying to make things make sense that just do not make sense," she reflects. "I need to give it to God so I can move on. These verses are a reminder that we don't have all the answers and don't need to get everything right the first time around because there's a bigger plan."

Leading a Catholic school also honors one of her grandmothers, Madeline Reed, a devout Catholic and devoted congregant at New All Saints Church on Liberty Heights Avenue in Baltimore City. Her Catholicism was so absolute, Ms. DeLancey says, that her grandmother would only set foot in a Catholic church.

Quiet, petite, taciturn, Nana Reed was the opposite of her smiling, outgoing granddaughter. But they were best friends, and the lessons Ms. DeLancey's grandmother gave made quite an impression. "She didn't smile a whole lot but was a very loving and generous person who taught me about humility, listening, and observing."

At this moment in history, the fundamentals of faith, Ms. DeLancey says, are essential for students' social and emotional well-being and moral and ethical foundation. "There are so many other things trying to distract us from what's good and right in the world," she adds. "At Maryvale, we start each day in communal prayer to center together as we move forward. That affects everything we do and how we treat each other in terms of being open-minded, wanting to serve others and being empathetic."

There was a moment last spring while looking for a big answer (see Proverbs again) when Ms. DeLancey saw the bigger picture in a big way. On the day of her interview as one of three finalists for the position of President, she drove onto campus, parked her car, and headed for the Castle. To her delight, waiting to greet her, as they had the other two candidates, was a "Soul Train-like" double line of boisterous, excited Maryvale students. Music was blasting. Girls were waving pom poms and signs—all to welcome Ms. DeLancey to campus.

"I was blown away and immediately felt at home," she recalls of this singular job interview experience. "What I saw that day was that Maryvale mattered to the students."

That moment, she also connected immediately with Maryvale's ethos of finding joy in the ordinary, another quality deeply ingrained in her since childhood. Her mother would sing before breakfast, making up songs about the day to come, and dancing in the kitchen. The extended family found ways to celebrate (often) the big and small and, always, to express gratitude. Ms. DeLancey felt the same joy during her interview. And every day since.

That sense of care for community—rooted in faith, gratitude, and exuberant joy—drives Ms. DeLancey's vision. "I want Maryvale to continue to lean on Catholic social teaching and the hallmarks of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur to improve the lives of our girls, the lives of our school community, and the Baltimore community," she explains.

For Ms. DeLancey, that means weaving together the threads from each step on her path, from the lessons gleaned from those who've shared her journey, to tie together ideals of inclusion and belonging, faith and service to better live The Maryvale Way of respect, dignity, and inclusivity, no matter the path you take.

"Malika consistently approaches challenges with courage, creativity, and optimism and gracefully motivates those around her to do the same. Maryvale is incredibly fortunate to have such a beacon of light at the helm. I look forward to the many ways that the Maryvale community will grow and advance under Malika's leadership."

—Matt Doyle, Lower School Principal,
The Park School of Baltimore

JEANIE GRANT

Celebrating 50 Years at Maryvale

Jeanie Grant, beloved math teacher, is celebrating 50 years of teaching at Maryvale. Jeanie came to Maryvale in the fall of 1973 after graduating from Towson University with her first degree, a B.S. in Mathematics and Secondary Education. At the time, Towson offered the best program for math educators in the state. As a young teacher, Jeanie chose to teach at Maryvale because of the small class size, the advanced course program, and the freedom to develop the math curriculum. Jeanie taught in the Middle School for five years, then moved to the Upper School where she developed the curricula for calculus and statistics as well as obtained approval for the AP levels. She also prepared the scheduling of classes for twenty years. Now she has returned to her first love of working with students in the classroom.

Over the years, Jeanie's teaching style has not changed dramatically. However, she has altered her presentation because of technology. She strikes a balance by using technology as an aid, not an excuse. "We still use paper and pencil in this room," says Jeanie of her hands-on approach. Math students still need to know their arithmetic, but Jeanie uses visuals with technology if it adds to the learning.

Jeanie has watched the evolution of Maryvale as the school has adapted to the times both academically and physically. Students have not changed individually. Society has changed, challenging today's students with many societal problems exacerbated by social media.

Jeanie is grateful for the relationship she has with her students. "I love seeing the smiles when they are enjoying an assignment. It's fun!" She reminds the girls, "Do your best in high school and look forward to expanding your options in college." Wise words from a cherished mentor and friend!

Students Pay Tribute to Mrs. Grant

I can still remember your class in the basement of Maguire Hall – your organization and clear explanation allowed me to learn when I doubted myself! I am grateful that my daughters, Maggie '20 and Lizzie '20, had the opportunity to have you as a teacher! – Jennifer Bogusky Moessbauer '86

For 50 years you've been investing in the future. I consider myself blessed to have had you as an influence during my time at Maryvale, not only as mathematics instructor, but also as an advisor and mentor. Because of how you invested in me, I felt seen and valued and have been able to parlay that into much success in my life. Thank you for giving me a basis which has resulted in a fulfilling life. – Kelley Blacksten Anders '87

Thank you so much for your patience and good humor. You made math accessible and helped me build a solid math foundation, which was crucial to getting through my pre-med coursework in college. – Veronica Deza, MD '87

When I think of Mrs. Grant, I think of that saying, "We don't remember what people said but we remember how they made us feel." She was always kind and patient and genuinely wanted her students to understand the material and be successful. – Jenny Meyer Saccenti '87

I thoroughly enjoyed coming to Mrs. Grant's classes every day. I was very prepared for my STEM degree and occupation because of your teaching. Thank you for your dedication and encouragement. – Laurie Mantegna Dryden '88

Mrs. Grant made learning fun. She always had a calm, patient demeanor and truly seemed to care about her students. – Karen McGinn Ritter '89

We are so very blessed to have Mrs. Grant at Maryvale all these years. Both my daughter, Margaret '24, and I were so lucky to have her as our teacher. She is a compassionate teacher who cares deeply about her students! – Chrissy Tamberino Huber '89

Ms. Grant's patience is limitless. I never would have gotten through math without her! While I was not gifted with a "math brain," she did see potential in me and appreciated my hard work and effort. – Molly O'Connor Bell '96

Congratulations to one of my favorite teachers of all time! Not only were you a great math teacher, but you also had the patience of a saint and supported me through personal and academic obstacles. Your sense of humor is second to none, and you dedicated your time to help me become the best I could be in and out of school. You have truly made a difference- which is why I am a teacher now, too. – Maeve McKew '05

Jeanie Grant was so patient and always found the ability to laugh with us in math classes. Ms. Grant was consistently calm, gracious, and funny as she presented new content and helped us all work through concepts in trigonometry and calculus. She made a subject I never fully grasped into a delightful part of my day. I am now a Montessori Elementary teacher, teaching math, of all things! – Julia Clark Isaza '05

Compassionate, caring, supportive, and encouraging. Mrs. Grant is the reason math was fun. She created a safe environment for students that extended well beyond the intricacies of mathematics. They always say that certain teachers leave a lasting imprint on your life; Mrs. Grant is one of those teachers! – Emma Sexton Cole '08

Mrs. Grant was my algebra teacher in 8th grade and my homeroom teacher for two years. I always loved being around her whether for extra tutoring or just to talk. She never gave up on me! – Rachel Miller '17

HIGHLIGHTS & SPOTLIGHTS

Patricia J. Mitchell

LEADERSHIP ✕ Maryvale's renowned Leadership Institute was named in 2023 in honor of Patricia J. Mitchell from Maryvale's Class of 1965. Founded in 2014, The Mitchell Leadership Institute positioned Maryvale as the first all-girls school in the region to provide an impressive leadership offering through its one-of-a-kind signature program.

The program started with just four courses. Now, ten years later, the Mitchell Leadership Institute has its own academic department, including seven teaching faculty and eight courses, as well as multiple complementary leadership classes across campus.

The Mitchell Leadership Institute provides all students with the academic training, real-life experiences, and immense opportunity to develop leadership skills that will catapult them ahead in college, career, and life.

ABOUT MLI

FORD PROGRAM

In the 2022–2023 academic year, Maryvale added another program to its depth of student support. The Ford Program, honoring then-President Tracey H. Ford, provides critical tools needed for academic success for students with ADHD and/or executive functions. In a 5:1 student-to-learning specialist ratio, students develop strong study, organization, and time management skills. The program has been a huge success!

ST. JULIE BILLIART PROGRAM

The St. Julie Billiart Program is in its twelfth year! Designed for students who have documented language-based learning differences, this program has been an integral part of Maryvale's student support system. Students' strengths are identified to build skills and ultimately success for their academic and leadership endeavors. The SJB Program provides technological and coaching resources to students with a 2:1 student-to-learning specialist ratio using proven instructional methods, allowing students to capably navigate the college preparatory curriculum. The SJB Program has grown tremendously over the years and continues to graduate highly skilled and college-ready students.

MINIMESTER ✂ Maryvale believes in engaging, hands-on learning. One way this is executed in the Middle School is through MiniMester. This program was designed to create a cross-curricular learning experience for our students, while providing opportunities to try something new, expand upon each student's gifts, and share skills with one another.

Each year there is a theme around which all activities are centered. In Fall 2023 the theme was Our Oceans. Students spent three days learning about our oceans, including pollution and the Great Pacific Garbage Patch as well as bioluminescence. Students designed and created their own trash clean-up machines from recycled materials, visited the National Aquarium in Baltimore, and created glow-in-the-dark murals of undersea scenes.

Past themes have included the Future of Fashion with a close look at fast fashion and sustainability.

Last year's theme was You Are What You Eat. Our students examined the path food takes to get to our tables and learned the importance of farming and agriculture. We welcomed farm animals from a local agritourism business to campus. Middle Schoolers learned about the importance of sustainable food and the future of our food.

ADVANCED PLACEMENT COURSES ✂ Maryvale offers 22 Advanced Placement Courses that run through multiple disciplines. For the 2024-2025 school year, Maryvale has added AP English 10 Seminar. This course helps students build foundational writing, collaboration, research, and presentation skills. These necessary skills, to varying degrees, will be infused in all English 10 Curriculum.

STEAM ✂ With an increased interest in STEAM (science, technology, engineering, arts, and math), Maryvale has added new courses.

To support our students' growing interest in STEAM (science, technology, engineering, arts, and math), Maryvale has expanded its curriculum. For the 2022-2023 school year, Intro to Engineering was added; this year, Honors Intro to Engineering was introduced. Maryvale continues to build on these opportunities and has added two new courses for the 2024-2025 school year, Interior Design and CAD 2.

Jessica writes that she remembers "shouting 'Dr. O' down the hallways of the Rodriguez Center. AP Biology is, to this day, one of the hardest classes I have taken. I remember my 7 years at Maryvale fondly, and credit them to the woman I am today. I am so excited to begin my career as a Nurse Practitioner. When I first took a nursing job at Johns Hopkins, I started with Lauren Fischer '08 and Cecelia Brown '08, both familiar faces as we graduated together. It is difficult to put into words what my Maryvale education means to me. It is something that I carry with pride, and it grows daily. Maryvale is just the beginning. You do not realize it when you graduate, but the foundation and memories will carry you through your life. I have loved having Maryvale students shadow me as a nurse and hopefully once COVID restrictions ease up, I will be able to have them follow me in the future! I truly love the foundation Maryvale provided."

Congratulations to the Class of 1973
who celebrated their Jubilee year by donating Maryvale's largest reunion gift to date!

In honor of their 50th Reunion last spring, classmates raised just over $175,000.

As part of their gift, the class has endowed a new scholarship fund for Maryvale, in memory of their beloved English teacher, Peggy Devall, who passed away late last year. Created to provide tuition assistance to students with financial need, the Peggy Devall Scholarship Fund is the first endowed fund to be established by a Maryvale class. Thank you to the Class of 1973 for this outstanding effort and for your generosity!

Gifts to the annual fund listed in this report include those received between July 1, 2022 and June 30, 2023. The Advancement Office has made every effort to ensure the information in this report is accurate and complete. However, sometimes errors do occur, and for this we apologize in advance. If you contributed to Maryvale during the 2022-2023 fiscal year, and you find that your name has been omitted or listed under an incorrect heading, please advise us by emailing vallem@maryvale.com.
